Preventing Suicides

ACA Announces Mini Correspondence Course

The American Correctional Association announces the availability of its first mini correspondence course, "Suicide Prevention in Custody."

Developed for everyone who works with adult and juvenile offenders, the information and techniques covered in this mini course will ensure that staff effectively help prevent suicides, suffer less stress and obtain greater liability protection.

"Suicide Prevention in Custody" was published to help correctional employees recognize the signs and symptoms of suicidal behavior and define their role in suicide prevention. It also provides guidelines for managing potentially suicidal inmates or residents and identifying the legal issues surrounding suicides in custody. Chapters on first aid and follow-up support for staff are also included.

As with other ACA correspondence courses, "Suicide Prevention in Custody" offers staff an opportunity to work at their own pace, using practical exercises and self-test questions.

Some courses scheduled for release in 1991 include "Substance Abuse: Identification and Treatment," "Managing Stress and Critical Incidents," "Conducting Performance Appraisals," and "Motivating Correctional Staff."

For more information on these or any of the training courses ACA offers on correctional topics, call for a free copy of the Correspondence Course Catalog, 1-800-825-BOOK.

History has proven."Stone walls do not a prison make."

Hence the reason for modern security systems: but these systems can range from good to bad, like Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and they can be just as monstrous, particularly for staff hired to manage them.

That's why D.W. Thomson designs advanced computer security systems with undeniable ease of operation.

Systems that dramatically increase security, and in doing so, greatly improve security for staff and surrounding communities.

Systems that provide a faster payback period by reducing manpower requirements.

Systems that do not require the need for operating personnel to be experts in technical aspects of the systems themselves.

Systems with a proven track record of performance.

To date there has not been a single incident of escape from an institution in which a "D.W. Thomson" integrated system has been installed that could be attributed to the failure of the system.

Now, that's really something for the history books.
